The Hindi film industry is taking off in Bollywood. It is now not only the most popular film industry of India, but also one of the most thriving movie industries globally. One of its recent examples that makes great use of the technology during production includes Hathyar Hindi movie starring Rishi Kapoor and directed by Samar Shaikh . The movie was recorded on high definition (HD) digital video with a resolution of 720p/1080i at 24 frames per second (fps), using multiple cameras to create 3D quality cinematography. This technology will enable producers to recreate reality more accurately than ever before. This technology will be especially useful in the film industry, where directors are seeking to portray reality more closely using this HD technology. For the purpose of creation, the Hindi movie Hathyar had required collection of 250 HD digital high definition video files recorded at 3 different angles simultaneously. Each HD video file was taken at 1 fps with a resolution of 1080P/720P/480P respectively. This process involves recording on multiple cameras and shooting at the same time. The same method has been used in Hollywood movies such as Avatar, Harry Potter and The Princess Diaries, which already holds a record on the biggest recorded size of digital film on a disc (78 gigabytes). The footage captured by the HD cameras was edited to create a flawless replica of reality, and then color correction was done to further enhance the quality of the visuals. This technology is projected to have wide usage of application in various sectors including entertainment, education, medicine.
